[^] Source: EC Pohl & Co Pty Ltd		MSCI Index in A$	3.6%

ECONOMIC COMMENTARY

The COVID-19 saga continues, with uncertainty and volatility reigning supreme. The pandemic continues to weigh heavily on economic activity as government intervention continues to place considerable restrictions through lockdown measures. While the previous quarter saw investors return to equities, the resurgence of COVID-19 in some regions and the upcoming US Presidential election in November has raised the level of uncertainty in these markets.

In the US, equity markets maintained the previous quarter's positive trend, with the Federal Reserve continuing to be accommodative through stimulus measures. Unemployment continued to decline to 8.4%, with better performance across manufacturing and retail. Notably, the Fed announced changes to inflation targets where they adopted an average inflation target - lengthening the equity market expansion. The S&P500 increased by +8.5%, the Dow Jones +7.6%, while the NASDAQ was up 11.0% seeing strong performance from the technology sector.

In Europe, the pandemic continues to wreak havoc on local economies with most member states posting flat or negative growth. Sharply rising COVID cases in regions such as the UK, France, Spain and Germany, are seeing lockdown measures coming into place – governments are placing more localised lockdown measures rather than country-wide. The UK seemed to lag their European counterparts with the ongoing Brexit issues compounding their poor performance and negative sentiment. The FTSE posted -4.9%, the CAC -2.7%, and the DAX posting +3.7%.

In Australia, we have been one of the lucky countries in terms of infection rates from COVID-19 and the flow-on economic impact. While our relatively strong performance and management of the pandemic has positioned us well, we have not escaped the effects as we have entered into our first recession since 1991. We note, despite entering into a recession, that Australia has performed materially better than many other Western countries. Despite this overall success, Victoria re-entered into strict lockdown procedures as infection rates spiralled out of control. The Australian Governments' JobKeeper and JobSeeker programs, as well as mortgage relief programs for households and small businesses, have provided robust support for the economy. The focus now as we head into the end of the calendar year, is how the Australian Government will attempt to manage the economy.

The Australian All Ords was up by +0.1% for the quarter and the Small Ordinaries up +4.9%, respectively. The AUD remained relatively stable against all major currencies during the quarter, posting +3.8% against the US Dollar (71.7US cents), -0.4% against the Pound (55.5 pence), and -0.6% against the Euro (61.1 cents).
