Reseller agreement with Accenture delivers major new sales channel and access to broader client base

Continued support and engagement with existing client base with many increasing scope of works

Prometheus and HWH technology integration now fully operational and driving greater customer engagement and new opportunities

Strong start to the December quarter with ~$86,000 worth of new contracts and extensions secured in October alone; first contract in the resources sector with global mining and commodity trading house

Sydney, Australia: Prescriptive AI Company, Houston We Have Limited (“Houston We Have”, the “Company”) (ASX: HWH), is pleased to provide this overview of corporate and operational progress for the three month period ended 30 September 2020 (Q1 FY2021).

The Company maintained a strong market position, securing a reseller agreement with leading global professional services firm Accenture creating a major new sales channel, locked in new customers, retained agreements through its Prometheus business and strengthened its advisory board with a new appointment. Further, Houston We Have continued to successfully navigate the effect of COVID-19 and its impact on operations.

Reseller agreement with Accenture

In a major development, Houston We Have secured a Master Terms & Conditions agreement (the “agreement”) with the Australian arm of global professional services company Accenture. The agreement allows Accenture to sell Houston We Have’s prescriptive AI technology to its corporate and government clients in Australia.

This is an endorsement of the Company’s patented ‘subjective logic’ technology, which can predict in circumstances even when there is missing or unreliable data.

The agreement opens a major sales channel for the Company and provides Houston We Have with access to potentially an extensive client base. A number of opportunities in various sectors are currently being pursued.

Health insurance sector progress

Houston We Have continues to make excellent progress in the health insurance sector through its Prometheus business, which was acquired in October 2019.

Pleasingly, the group deployed its lapsing model with the Queensland Country Health Fund (QHCF) to identify clients who are most likely to leave the fund. The model embraces both data science and prescriptive AI via Intelfuze. Other health funds are watching with interest and several are keen to explore the capability for themselves.

The new Prometheus development team, hired during the previous quarter, have now assumed responsibility for the sector with the business founders supporting where required.

Department of Defence

Due to the COVID-19 restrictions, onsite training has been suspended. Video training content has been developed to support the rollout of Intelfuze and is nearing completion. In addition, training, mentoring and coaching will be conducted via video conference for defence personnel.

Appointment of Steve Picton strengthens Advisory Board

Mr Picton is a successful technology and communications industry executive, boasting a career spanning over 30 years. He was CEO and founder of mobile virtual network operator goTalk Limited, which merged with ASX-listed Tel.Pacific. He has also held senior leadership roles at AAPT and British Telecom, where he was instrumental in the sale, marketing and strategy development functions.

Since 2014, Steve has been CEO of LBNCo, Australia's first fibre to the home operator, having connected state-of-the-art access networks to over 100,000 homes and businesses. He also focuses on a number of private investments in the technology sector.

UK presence

Houston We Have continued to gain traction in the United Kingdom. The Company advises that it has a robust sales pipeline in the region and is in the final stages of contention for several large contracts.

Houston We Have anticipates that, if it is successful, the Company will be able to report on these high calibre prospects during the current period.

Quarterly financial summary

Cash receipts from customers for the quarter were $354,000 (prior quarter $484,000). Cash receipts decreased compared with the prior quarter, with a number of the Prometheus annual billings, as well as some Houston We Have annual billing amounts, received prior to 30 June 2020.

The Company remains vigilant on expenditure with net cash outflows of $286,000 for the period, managing its cost base conservatively in response to the effects of COVID-19. Houston We Have is well capitalised with $3.2m cash at bank, providing the necessary financial flexibility to organically grow its client base.

Strong start to December quarter

The December quarter has commenced well with existing customers, both Defence and health funds, requesting additional consulting support and technology functionality, and new customer contracts secured.

A notable achievement was Houston We Have securing its first contract in the resources sector with a globally recognised commodity trading and mining company.

Houston We Have will deploy its patented human-centred AI software, Intelfuze, to create an early warning system for various projects and opportunities. Phase 1 involves automating elements of the current manual due diligence processes to more readily identify potential risks arising from, for example funding, pricing discrepancies and political situations.

Combined, the contract enhancements and new engagement yield an initial $86,000 in new revenue from 1 October.

Management commentary

Managing Director and CEO Elizabeth Whitelock said: "The Company has performed well in the quarter particularly in the face of challenging circumstances and limited operating abilities in key markets like the UK.

Houston We Have continues to progress opportunities in Australia and the UK where we remain in contention for some high profile contracts. Securing a new contract in the resources sector with a globally recognised mining and commodities trading house, that has requested confidentiality, is an outstanding development and marks our first paid contract in this highly lucrative and large sector. Phase 1 of the contract is underway and we have every confidence the engagement will expand to further phases. I look forward to updating shareholders on more sales progress as the December quarter advances."*
