Operations

In July 2020, Patrys partnered with Olivia Newton-John Cancer Research Institute (ONJCRI) and the La Trobe University School of Cancer Medicine, and was awarded a $50,000 Federal Government grant to support research at ONJCRI for Patrys' PAT-DX1 program. This research will be led by Professor Robin Anderson, Head of ONJCRI's Translational Breast Cancer Program and the Metastasis Research Laboratory. Professor Anderson's research is focused on understanding the genetic regulation of metastasis, primarily in breast cancer. The research program will investigate the ability of PAT-DX1 to identify and treat distant sites of breast cancer metastasis. PAT-DX1's impact on regression of primary and metastatic breast cancers will be assessed in combination with standard-of-care radio- and chemo-therapies. Following these initial studies, Patrys and the ONJCRI plan to expand this collaboration to include PAT-DX1-NP, PAT-DX3 and additional new formats of the Deoxymab platform.

In August 2020, the Company released a Business Review of its activities and achievements for the 2019-2020 financial year. The Company is proud of its successes in a what has been a very turbulent year due to the Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic. Patrys' research teams in the US and Australia have been successful in obtaining multiple grants to the value of US$3.1m (A$4.9m) over the next five years to progress the Deoxymab platform. During 2019-2020 Patrys has expanded its knowledge and gained further insights into PAT-DX1's unique mechanism of action, allowing development of programs to further elucidate its role in killing aggressive cancers.

In September 2020, Patrys was pleased to announce it had successfully completed the initial production and characterisation of PAT-DX3, a full-sized, humanised version of its Deoxymab antibody fragment PAT-DX1. The initial development and characterisation of PAT-DX3 confirms that, like PAT-DX1, it is able to bind to the DNA release from solid tumours and penetrate into cancer cell nuclei. The Company believes that PAT-DX3 is likely to show similar efficacy benefits in future animal models of cancer but, as a full-sized antibody, PAT-DX3 is likely to have different pharmaceutical properties (pharmacokinetics, half-life and tissue distribution) to PAT-DX1 that may provide open up additional clinical applications for Patrys' Deoxymab platform.

During the quarter, Patrys continued progressing the development of stable cell lines for the PAT-DX1 program which is on track for completion this calendar year. The Company expects to complete toxicology studies in the new year and filing for a clinical trial in late 2021 or early 2022.

Corporate

During the quarter, Patrys successfully closed a fully underwritten $4.3 million Rights Issue, ending the quarter with A$7.02m in cash. During the quarter, the Company had net cash outflows of A$832k with A$474k invested in research and development (R&D) associated with pre-clinical studies. As noted above, and supported by new investors, the Company's activities have expanded and now include both the advancement of PAT-DX1 towards the clinic and new development activities of the broader Deoxymab platform. The Company will continue to expend funds prudently, in line with both management and operational practices and policies, particularly during this time of economic uncertainty due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Payments to related parties and their associates during the quarter as outlined in Section 6 of the accompanying Appendix 4C to this quarterly activities report were A$141k. These payments are related to executive director salaries, non-executive director fees and consulting services for the quarter.

About Patrys Limited

Based in Melbourne, Australia, Patrys (ASX:PAB) is focused on the development of its Deoxymab platform of cell-penetrating antibodies as therapies for a range of different cancers. More information can be found at www.patrys.com.

About Patrys' Deoxymab 3E10 platform – lead candidates PAT-DX1 and PAT-DX1-NP:

Deoxymab 3E10 is a DNA damage-repair (DDR) antibody that was first identified in lupus as an autoantibody that bound to normal cells. Of particular interest is that whilst most antibodies bind to cell surface markers, Deoxymab 3E10 penetrates into the cell nuclei and binds directly to DNA where it inhibits DNA repair processes and kills cells that have mutations or deficiencies in DNA repair mechanisms as found in various cancer cells. Deoxymab 3E10 has single agent therapeutic potential and has been shown to significantly enhance the efficacy of both chemo- and radiotherapies. Further, Deoxymab 3E10 can be conjugated to nanoparticles to target delivery of chemotherapeutics and imaging agents to tumors.

Patrys has developed a humanized form of Deoxymab 3E10, PAT-DX1 with improved activity over the original version of 3E10, and is progressing this, and a nanoparticle-conjugated form (PAT-DX1-NP) towards the clinic. In a range of pre-clinical cancer models PAT-DX1 has shown significant ability to kill cancer cells in cell models, human tumor explants, xenograft and orthotopic models. Treatment with PAT-DX1 has been shown to significantly improve survival in orthotopic models of both triple negative breast cancer brain metastases and glioblastoma. PAT-DX1 has also been shown to enhance the therapeutic effect of low dose radiation. Patrys believes that PAT-DX1 may have application across a wide range of malignancies such as gliomas, melanomas, prostate, breast, pancreatic and ovarian cancers.

Patrys' rights to Deoxymab 3E10 are part of a worldwide license to develop and commercialize as anti-cancer and diagnostic agents a portfolio of novel anti-DNA antibodies and antibody fragments, variants and conjugates discovered at Yale University.
