Performance Commentary

$ currency notation refers to Australian Dollars

October return was -0.67%. Performance was largely attributed to the top and bottom pairs with many of the pairs in between contributing nothing. Volatility settled down during the month. Volatility has been elevated since March when it hit extreme levels.

Our top pair was QAN/FLT. During the month Jayne Hrdlicka was appointed CEO of Virgin, which, in conjunction with private equity ownership, ought to result in a more rational domestic aviation industry than it was with Virgin's prior ownership structure and management. We anticipate Flight Centre's recovery will be constrained by the significant shop closures and an extended wait for international travel.

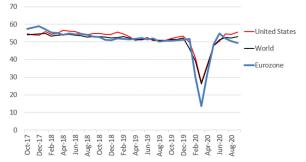

Our second-best pair, NWL/IFL has been a very strong contributor this year. Both reported quarterly flows with Netwealth strong and IOOF weak.

During the month we had a takeover announced in both the long and the short portfolio. Link received a bid from private equity elevating LNK/CPU to our third best pair. In the short portfolio Coca-Cola Amatil was bid for by Coca-Cola European Partners which led to A2M/CCL being our bottom pair. The timing of the CCL bid was unfortunate as we were in the process of closing the pair following A2M's downgrade in the prior month. Consequently, our position size was smaller than normal, but it was still enough to sting.

Market Observations

Share markets tried but failed to recover from their sell-off in September, posting low to mid-single digit declines for October. Markets had started the month with gains but the momentum faded owing to negative news flow such as uncertainty over the size and timing of new fiscal stimulus in the US, some further setbacks to vaccine trials underway (hitting sectors such as airlines, hotels, restaurants), and resurging cases of COVID-19 in Europe prompting renewed lockdowns that are weighing on already subdued lead economic indicators such as PMI surveys (see chart below). Despite the risk-off tone across equities, safe haven assets such as gold and bonds were little changed.

Absolute Equity Performance Fund Limited Monthly NTA and Performance Update

As at 31 October 2020

Australia defied the offshore weakness with a gain of +1.9% (ASX 200 index). However, the rise was narrowly driven via the Bank (+7.5%) and Information Technology (+9%) sectors, with the former helped by the Federal Government announcing a relaxation of responsible lending obligations previously seen as a constraint on credit growth.

Wage supplements, fiscal stimulus and other measures to compensate for lockdowns and restricted movement are distorting measures of economic activity. A good example is the collapse in the number of companies entering administration. The consequence is a high level of uncertainty regarding prospects for the economy when temporary measures are withdrawn. The RBA's final interest rate cut, guidance on the duration of effective zero interest rates and quantum of QE is an indication of their concern.
