ASX Announcement

WINEDEPOT SIGNS MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING FOR PARTNERSHIP WITH EBAY AUSTRALIA'S NUMBER ONE SHOPPING SITE

Digital Wine Ventures Limited ("Digital Wine" or "the Company"), is pleased to announce that WINEDEPOT has entered into a memorandum of understanding ("MoU") with eBay, Australia's number one online shopping site.¹

Under the MoU, WINEDEPOT and eBay will negotiate the terms of a partnership to provide Australian wineries with the ability to list their products directly on eBay without having to set up an account.

The partnership would enable products to be automatically uploaded via a new part of WINEDEPOT's integrated trading and logistics platform called DIRECT, that allows suppliers to sell to customers across a broad range of direct-to-consumer sales channels. Orders generated from eBay will be picked, packed and delivered by WINEDEPOT, allowing eBay's 12 million unique monthly visitors² to purchase from multiple suppliers at the same time, while taking advantage of same and next day delivery services in locations where those services are available.

Digital Wine's CEO Dean Taylor is confident that a partnership with eBay would help local producers generate incremental sales to consumers, not just here in Australia but also over time in other global markets as WINEDEPOT develops capability to drop ship orders internationally.

eBay Australia's Managing Director, Tim MacKinnon said, "We know bushfires and COVID border closures along with limited venue capacities have left countless Australian businesses doing it tough."

"eBay exists to create economic opportunity, which is why we're excited to partner with WINEDEPOT, enabling local wine producers - many of which are located in regional areas - to scale their online offering and giving their local regions a much-needed economic boost."

Since launching in Australia in 1999, eBay has evolved from an online auction house to Australia's number one shopping site with 40,000 Australian retailers. Two out of every three adult Australians now visit the site each month.³

Wineries interested in listing their products on eBay via WINEDEPOT DIRECT should contact WINEDEPOT on +61 2 8363 3351 or market@winedepot.com

Material terms of the MoU:

- The MoU is between eBay Marketplaces GmbH and Wine Depot Holdings Pty Ltd (a wholly owned subsidiary of Digital Wine).
- There are no minimum fees or expected volumes specified in the MoU.
- Similarly, there are no limits to the quantity of products sold by WINEDEPOT suppliers through eBay.
- It is therefore not possible to forecast potential revenues under a partnership that may result from any partnership developed pursuant to the MoU.
- The MoU is non-binding and it is possible that a partnership may not eventuate.
- If a partnership does eventuate from the MoU, it is possible that no material revenue materialises from the partnership with eBay.
- The terms of the MoU provide for a fixed percentage marketing fee that WINEDEPOT will pay to eBay, based on agreed commercial terms, applied to each sale that a WINEDEPOT supplier makes through the eBay sales platform.
