Under the transaction IPH will acquire Applied Marks which will continue to operate its existing platforms, whilst it is also expected to extend into other jurisdictions. IPH CEO, Dr Andrew Blattman, said: "The acquisition of Applied Marks accelerates our digital capability while allowing us to address an expanded market.

"It bolsters our ability to participate in the online automated IP services space, and will support us to evolve our traditional trade mark offering in line with the changing market.

"Over time we expect to harness this digital expertise in related areas of IP and use those tools to support a more seamless interaction amongst providers, clients and regulatory authorities to generate further efficiencies for our teams and our clients across the regions in which we operate," he said.
