

Strategic Support Alliance with Austin Engineering

Perth, Australia – 30 September 2021: Mader Group Limited ('Mader') (ASX:MAD), a leading global provider of specialist heavy equipment maintenance services is pleased to announce it has executed a strategic support alliance with Austin Engineering Limited ('Austin') (ASX:ANG).

The agreement will see Mader and Austin collaborate to provide a substantial technical support network for Austin's engineering products. Under the alliance framework, Mader can deliver a range of flexible, tap-on tap-off services including technical on-site warranty and maintenance support which will be augmented with Austin's existing support resources as required.

The collaboration has the potential to further enhance the reliability of Austin's extensive product range through world class in-field maintenance. The initial focus of the alliance will be in the key mining regions of Western Australia, Queensland and New South Wales.

Austin Engineering is the largest non-OEM manufacturer of customised mining buckets, dump truck bodies and ancillary products including the JEC and Westech brands. In addition to bodies and buckets, the JEC product range covers a broad selection of attachment applications in the mining, earthmoving, materials handling and quarry sectors.

Mader Chief Executive Officer and Executive Director, Mr Justin Nuich, commended the alliance between the industry leaders. "It gives us great pleasure to support Austin's operations moving forward."

"A partnership between the largest independent provider of equipment maintenance services in Australia and the market leader in the design and manufacture of load and haul solutions is very exciting. Working together, we plan to leverage synergies that will drive significant productivity and efficiency gains for both parties and our customers alike."
