Update - Incident at Curragh Mine Complex

Coronado Global Resources Inc ("Coronado", the "Company" ASX: CRN) provides an update on the recent incident at its Curragh Mine Complex ("Curragh") in Queensland, Australia.

Operations at Curragh have been suspended since 21 November 2021 when an employee, Mr Clark Peadon, was fatally injured while working in the Dragline operations.

Resources Safety & Health Queensland ("RSHQ") Inspectors are continuing their investigation of the incident with the full support of the Company. Queensland Police are no longer on site The RSHQ Inspectorate has issued directives to isolate the accident site and to suspend all operations of draglines at Curragh until it is satisfied that these activities can recommence safely. Coronado will continue to work alongside authorities as required for the investigation process.

Coronado has commenced planning for a gradual and phased recommencement of operational activities that will progressively restart over the coming days. Dragline operations will remain suspended until otherwise advised.

The Company continues to provide counselling and support to all employees, contractors and their families.

Further updates will be released as they become available.

This announcement was authorised for release in accordance with the Disclosure Policy of Coronado Global Resources Inc.
