MARKET UPDATE AND COMMENTARY

- The portfolio returned 1.2% in December, capping off a 7.1% return in the quarter, after a period of weakness.
- China's COVID-zero policy shift and reopening dominated headlines in December.
- Tencent was the top contributor on the back of Beijing approving imported games.

Market Commentary

China's COVID-zero policy shift

December saw a shift away from China's COVID-zero policy and an easing of restrictions. Optimism regarding China's reopening quickly gave way to concerns about a larger drag on near-term economic growth and renewed concerns that new COVID variants could emerge as cases rise. As a result, more countries have imposed testing requirements for travellers from China. Our view is that the impact of the lockdowns and COVID spread is already reflected in the Chinese market, with the SSE Composite Index down 15% in 2022. As long-term investors, we are less concerned about any short-term economic setback due to rising COVID cases and maintain our focus on China's long-term economic rebound, which we think will be boosted by government policy support.

December saw an improvement in relations between the West and China

Relations between the US and China were positive in mid-December, with US regulators saying they had been allowed to inspect the work of auditors in China. This eased the threat that about 200 Chinese companies could be removed from American stock markets. It was reported that New York-listed Chinese stocks such as Pinduoduo and Full Truck Alliance were dropping plans to also list in Hong Kong, a sign they are less concerned about future regulatory conflicts (Source: The Information, 28 December 2022). A common concern about investing in China is the potential for rising conflict between the West and China. We think this concern is exaggerated and this latest cooperation is a sign that relations may be improving.

Elsewhere in Asia

South Korea's semiconductor chip production fell by the most since the global financial crisis (GFC), reflecting the deepening downturn as chipmakers struggle to clear large inventories and inflation saps demand for electronics (Source: Financial Times). A resilient rupiah and cooling inflation allowed Indonesia's central bank to slow the pace of its rate hikes, while lawmakers expanded the central bank's mandate and formalised its crisis bond-buying scheme, which was temporarily used during the pandemic.

Performance Analysis*

The positive performance continued in December with the portfolio up 1.2% for the month in a down market. The portfolio returned 7.1% for the quarter ending 31 December 2022, with performance recovering since the end of October. Top contributors to December's performance were Chinese holdings, including Tencent Holdings (internet and technology company), ZTO Express (parcel delivery business) and Ping An Insurance (insurance company). Detractors included LG Chem Ltd (South Korean electric vehicle battery maker), Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing (semiconductor manufacturer and designer) and Samsung Electronics (consumer electronics).

The top contributor to performance, Tencent, rallied after China's video games regulator granted publishing licences to 45 foreign games and 84 domestic games. Approval of foreign games was seen as the last regulatory curb to be removed since Beijing's crackdown on the video games industry began in August 2021. Tencent won approval to publish five imported games, including Pokémon Unite by Nintendo and Valorant by Riot Games and its own game Synched: Off-Planet. Tencent has an amazing market position in China (its apps reach ~98% of Chinese internet users), with dominance in gaming, chat services and payments (Source: Business Insider, October 2017). Given investor scepticism about China, we were able to buy it at a discount to peers, and future growth prospects have been buoyed by this regulatory move.

Valuation

Given the portfolio's stronger-than-market performance over the last quarter, it is no surprise that the portfolio's aggregate earnings yield is slightly lower than the market at the end of 2022 (see table below). We continue to focus on finding businesses that have better long-term growth prospects than the opportunity set but are at attractive valuations.

Metric	Platinum Asia Investment Limited	MSCI AC Asia Ex Japan Index (A$)
NTM Earnings Yield	7.6% (Price-to-Earnings ratio of 13.2x)	8.1% (Price-to-Earnings ratio of 12.3x)
NTM Dividend Yield	2.7%	3.3%
NTM Enterprise Value-to-Sales	1.7x	1.1x
LTM Price-to-Book Ratio	1.5x	1.5x

The valuations in the table have been calculated by Platinum and for the portfolio refer to the long portion of the portfolio, exclude negative net earnings and use FactSet consensus earnings. As at 31 December 2022. NTM = next twelve months. LTM = last twelve months.
